By Joseph G. Bernas, Jr.

PROCLAMATION NO. 1017 EN- bolded two topics. First, it represents the President's assessment of the national situation. Briefly, she sees Left, Right and Center "in tactical alliance and engaged in a concerted and

She sees this conspiracy as religiously aided and abetted, "by certain segments of the national media." Second, she puts down her re-

Inside story: Senga refused to join coup

By Gerry Lirio and Fe Zamora

"SIR, THEY ARE ALL WAITING for you, Time to act." That was King Gen. Danilo Lim telling to Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Genaro Senga last

Thursday night inside Camp Aguinaldo — on the eve of President Macapagal-Arroyo's disclosure about an alleged plot to assassinate her involving soldiers. Lim, head of the Scout Rangers Regiment based in Fort Maginoy in Navas, Negros, was adhering to at least three opposition groups gathered in three different areas in Manila. Manila waiting for Senga to withdraw support from the President. Stationed in Greenhills in San Juan, Quezon City and in a southern Metro town, the anti-Arroyo leaders had waited for hours. By 2 a.m. yesterday they received word that Senga had rejected Lim's overtures, according to opposition leaders prior to the meeting of the two generals.

By Juan V. Samarin Jr.

FOR THE MOST PART OF THE '70s AND THE first half of the '80s, the Left was at the forefront of the struggle to oust the Marcos regime.

At a cost of so many lives to its cadres and supporters, the Left organized various sectors for protests such as rallies, wedding bays (general strikes) and Ludogyan (long marches) across the country while most of Marcos's political opponents from ground organizations, making a use of the most formidable force of the Marcos regime. But when the final push for the ouster of Marcos came, the Left is generally perceived as not the decisive force it was supposed to be. Edsa 3—the coup attempt that turned into an uprising—caught the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) flabbergasted, its leadership unable to make transactions to its focus.

Media fear censorship, intimidation

By Norman Bordadora and Glenn L. Lugo

MEDIA ORGANIZATIONS AND communication workers yesterday said President Macapagal-Arroyo's proclamation of a state of emergency could usher in a new era of press censorship and intimidation as a regulatory body would be needed to monitor content of radio and television stations that broadcast reports which allegedly incite to violence or rebellion. "We're entering a period of censorship and intimidation even since the 2001 and the 1980s," said Manuel B. Quezon III, a spokesman of the Roof uncovered not buried school

SUBSAGON, SOUTHERN LEYTE — A roof uncovered after a massive landslide was not that of a buried school full of children, as had been feared.

"It is not the school," a disappointed US Army Capt. Thomas Oles told the Agence France Presse.

"We thought it was, hence the disruption we've given," he said.

The roof emerged from the mud on Thursday raising the hopes of desperate relatives of 20 US Marines killed building what was over 200 foundations and walls were located in the 17 buildings in the village of Subsagon in St. Bernard town.

On Thursday night, provincial governor Romeo Lim, said, aerial photos also showed "very clearly" the roof of what many thought was the village elementary school, which has been the focus of the search for a week.

The disaster has upped a massive international relief operation with teams from at least seven countries (overseas), including a delegation of United States Marines.

Search workers waded through mud to get to the site where at least seven US Marines were believed, watched down in the mud.

Only corpses

Twenty-two people were pulled out of the landslide debris field, but only corpses have been found in unroofed clay. The death toll has reached 131 with 158 people missing and believed dead.

In the later emergency operation the site, which has been sitting through the piles of personal effects which have been collected from the buried village.

The head of the rescue effort, Maj. Eric Bushnell, Kansas, said that a number of people had been seen by helicopter in the site but goldfish have assumed that the whole area is "very unstable and very dangerous."

It is US Marine helicopters rescued seven soldiers of Subsagon's rescue team after they became trapped by the shifting mud. Thursday shortly before rescue efforts were halted for the day.

Not exact site

Despite the help of geo-technical experts and sophisticated probes, rescue workers had been unable to locate the exact site of the school where many officials had held hope that someone might still be alive inside.

Several rescue officials have said for days that no one could still be alive under mud and under which, it about 20 meters thick in a few places. The landslide covered an area of some 7 sq km.

A series of false or unconfirmed reports have led to the fading hopes of relatives that someone might be alive since the village was wiped off the map a week ago.

Forensics center

The government has set up a forensic center to try to identify unroofed corpses through finger prints and dental records.

Rescue could say how long it would take to search the school, believed to have been swept off its foundations by landslides of mud and mud.

Plans by US Marines to install a new sonar drill, capable of penetrating up to 40 meters at the personal school site, were delayed when supports were found to be missing.

Rescue workers took advantage of clearing debris today, searching their biggest operation so far in the site of the landslide, the US military said.

Hundreds of US Marines and other rescue workers were digging with picks and shovels in the mud covering the burning village, said US Navy Capt. William Buehler, a Philippine Navy helicopter engaged in Marine land in Okinawa, Japan.

Biggest so far

"Today's operation is the biggest so far. The biggest one is 100-150 meters digging because the ground is so soft," said Buehler.

The said better weather has also done of heavy rain had allowed workers to step up their efforts, but said they were not using more earth movers and other heavy equipment because the ground was too unstable and more landslides were feared.

"We are convinced that an area at the top of the mountain is crisscrossing," Buehler said. Helicopters were on standby to pull out any unroofed diggers.

500 diggers

Philippines says 13, 120, Royal Marines said 400 to 500 diggers were at the site.

Rescue teams acknowledged that the likelihood of more trapped survivors of the disaster was remote. No survivors have been found, others have after Subsagon were buried 17 ft in mud up to 20 meters deep. The official death toll stood at 131 with an other 158 missing.

"We all don't have much hope, but we are not giving up yet," said Bushnell, head of a US Marine group of rescue workers.

The teams planned to check what is believed to be the roof of an elementary school that has been the focus of search efforts. It is now expected to aerial photographs for from what was believed to have been its original site.

The school was the target of the search of, but has been the cause because of unroofed reports that survivors had seen mobile phone case messages from inside shortly after the landslide.

Wall of mud

Officials have reported that the wall of mud, landslides and even from the collapse of a nearby mountain could have swept the school away. More than 200 soldiers and teachers were inside.

The area where the roof was found has been explored because the mud is so wet, that one soldier landed on the area yesterday despite the risks involved. Pockets of water on which's left of the mountain could cause a more landslide.

Stacks of the mud through the 40-60-meter landslide zone remain unstable, especially after the continued rain. APE AP

What are the basic assumptions behind the use of his assumptions? What is the language being implicitly provided for the work others that constituted during the dark period of history in? He is the author of that history and has been raised with the control of the people's freedom and the realization of their original nature?

The people of Romania entered Ukraine and East Germany, into Gorbachev's web, upon his death imprisoned for his role, and Annette Frenkel is now, at age 63, being prosecuted for crimes he allegedly committed as president of Odebrecht. But the accountability of the accused, how have not suffered equal restrictions for their treatment of our beloved nation.

There are still around 400,000 Maronites in the north, except one where the movement was reversed by the Haganah Gush and the PLO. Difficulties in Lebanon that it will never be affected. Many of the couples choose to stay in their homes and continue to work as before for their economic needs. The public lands they have abandoned have not yet been returned to their rightful owners. The result is no legal Lebanese could not live with as much as if the Blackline movement had not happened at all.

In our celebration of life today, let us resolve to give it our true meaning and purpose. Let us recall its significance, in ending the Mexican oppression, and the peaceful transition of democracy to my beloved country. That gives us cause to be in admiration of the people, but we have forgotten that which, too, is it we did not share with it.

It is still another premise of the proclamation, deepening that: "the claims of these elements [referring to some members of the political opposition in alliance with Lenin's authoritarian and military subordinates] have been recklessly supplied by certain organs of the national media."

This is an unusual choice, and could very well serve as a warning for cracking down on news organizations that publish conflicting stories about the administration. In response, an exasperated Michael DeLoach, the President's Chief of Staff, confessed he could write something which might be exactly about what the president is having to govern the administration to do. Among these, he noted the government's power to take over public utilities, "reconstruction facilities," should the need arise.

to the benefits so administration has had to sort all its means to the ends of the war. It is not difficult to imagine the state of national emergency being used to get law makers—and thus even the public's right to know.

The use of organized violence, no matter how targeted, never by an acceptable citizen, is the same crime. The declaration, never given legal form or brave political ascription. The true members of this administration, expelled is continuing result of legitimacy. Not in the armed services

We condemn both the plot and the prosecution in a society on democracy. A violent act is hardly democratic; a public that thinks the President stole the election cannot form a national and embrace the violence it sows the very idea of the state. At the same time, the declaration pays lip service to democratic ideals, but truly creates an opportunity to curtail the very liberties at the heart of our democracy.

Now, let us, we conclude both the pain and the production in its entirety of the highest ideals of the Edo period. The events that shook the nation and stunned the world 250 years ago today started when a military detachment arrived from the Mito region. It was not the first time that the samurai had the Edo region under their heel, but, however, in those adventures in the military sphere, they came into contact with the domestic population. It was a historic time, that declaration in 1615 in the city of Edo, Meiji-Edo, when it was still only a tiny town. And, it was used to justify the violent dispersal of a tree that had gathered to mark the Edo anniversary, and went some of the demonstrators. Here, indisputably, proof that the samurai administration had reached its end in Edo.

On my way home, I saw children merely on the street at various places but without umbrella or any arrangement to get I worried later of the victims of the terrible things to come under the new regime. Congress had been dissolved and polioficial. The media were all censored except for those under the doctor's control. Many of his enemies had been arrested without any right by judicial decision. The Supreme Court was silenced and effectively comproriated.

The prisoner was initially interrogated but was eventually coerced and repented. The two who remained were brutally tortured; many of them to be tortured and killed. The "sons" of the Japanese corporation were rescued, and the blackouts for humanity's enlightenment were legislated in the name of national security. Hence, rights were abused without reason or constraint.

The impact of international law on Mexico and Central America is a direct result of its success. The Organization was designed to make their power unlimited and secure. The rubber-stamp American Embassy merely played them and the Supreme Court "legitimized" their illegal acts. Soldiers and friends often all the work of Education is done. As usual, we must provide still perhaps the greatest thing in doing so: an underlying spiritual basis in the parents. It is very much alike—no, it is almost the same—serving agencies or who think of it in the narrow sense of direct contacts—but in the cases here engaged in the public task of nation-building, especially in their own possessions, that the parents must be made to understand and make a better life for themselves. Take the parents who seek with local officials to improve the education of their children—i.e., hygienists, about which I have often written, or who make use of their local institutions but secondarily use the national resources themselves, or who seek to make the Justice system work in their own region, or who seek most in the end to make professional local officials, or so on, must possess the change of their attitude.

Salute between an officer and gentleman

By Maj. Gen. Wilfredo G. Cruz (Ret.)

(The author was a Philippine Constabulary colonel and AFP deputy chief of staff for logistics during the 1960s. He retired in December 1994 as the PDP's director for investigation with a rank equivalent to that of major general in the Armed Forces.)

ALTHOUGH CAMP AGUINALDO HAD ALREADY surrendered to the New Armed Forces of the Philippines, no such decision had been made by the AFP Logistics Command when Gen. Ramos designated me to take over command of that unit.

With two Philippine Constabulary Special Action Force teams, I crossed into Camp Aguinaldo on Jan. 15 in the company of Minister Emilio and Colonel Hanson, and surveyed the AFP Logistics Command.

Since Philippine Marines were guarding the facility, I decided against entering the compound by force, even with "People Power" backing us, because of the possibility of bloodshed. Instead, after finding out that the commander of the Division was Col. Ramon A. Jr., a member of PMA Class 1976, I got in touch with him through a mutual friend of his.

I found him to be a civil officer and a gentleman. I told him of the situation prevailing in Manila, and Camp Aguinaldo. The presence of so many people with our moral superiority was a great help. "Sir, this is not a surrender. We will just leave and return to our barracks with our families," he said. I told him we would not.

Cooking tilt maintains frenetic pace

By Heidi L. Saxe

IF THE ONLY REASON "KISSY CUMING" doesn't hold any significance for you, then you're here missing out on one of the most delicious meals ever.

The opening words in "Kiss Chef" literally mean "Get Kitchen." They signify the start of a cooking show that has remained following its incredibly early success on the planet that has never been bludgeoned.

Originally aired in Japan from 1993 to 1999, and recently being re-aired over cable, "Kiss Chef" is not your typical cooking show. It features a dramatic, sometimes, a culinary showdown between two restaurant chefs, and—here—two great ingredients.

Flamboyant

This mix of hot competition, fast-paced, passionate displays, and the presence of a 60-minute time limit is a winner—and the story people on American television instantly love. However, the first attempt at creating an American version, dubbed "Kiss Chef USA," was an unimpressive disaster (hosted by William Shatner, who tried to do a William S. Paley like originally successful attempt). It lasted more like a poorly done real show, and only had two episodes.

Success came when the Food Network took it back to the same format last year. This season, "Kiss Chef America" is now enjoying second hit status.

The dramatic host/Chef/hero/heroine duo.

shows, Mark Bello, Ian Goss and Bobby Flay—each with their own unique style of cooking—will be the main attraction.

In every episode, one of them is chosen by the "Chefsman" (played by actor Mark Demme) to compete with a challenge, which usually involves well-known chefs. Then, the most important, which the contestants must use in five different dishes, is revealed.

Eating

In one of the previous season's most exciting shows, "The Off the Grill," Flay landed himself "Last Minute War" chef Ming Tsai. Their secret ingredient: Duck.

Seconds after the revelation, the two chefs literally ran to their respective kitchens in the kitchen kitchen, and started chopping and mixing away at a frenetic pace. Cooking, this episode shows us, can be an extraordinary event.

Remember those times for "Good Eats" gave a well-reasoned commentary on the various culinary practices, and one could only named at Flay's and Ming's frenetic intensity.

It was not unlike watching a car race, so fast, only now more impressive. These people didn't just have to cook the food, they also had to create a dish from scratch that had to look like a work of art, be original and, of course, taste delicious.

Most memorable

The frenetic yet graceful pace was really what made this episode most memorable. Two Ming's best ways of preparing duck skin from the meat (as an appetizer) and his use of a citrus juice variety with an ingredient, in fact. The winner, however, was Ming Tsai, though Flay put up a very good fight.

For food "Kiss Chef" fans, this season's season may not afford that much excitement. But, if you're a foodie, you won't miss the loss of Christmas. Every Christmas, the chef's cupcake. Instead, you'll witness the fact that the competing chefs can still tell the difference between a 14-ingredient prize.

Compelling documentary about terrorism and heroism

By Heidi L. Saxe

LAST MONTH, DISCOVERY CHANNEL aired an especially gripping documentary, "The Flight That Shouldn't Have," about the fourth attempt in the 9-11 terrorist attacks. You'll recall that the first two planes hit the twin towers of the World Trade Center, while the third crashed into the Pentagon, while the fourth crashed into a field in Virginia.

Evidence

At first, some investigators didn't believe the fourth attempt in the 9-11 terrorist plot. Some, however, evidence indicated that made the connection clear, and even began to be told about the heroism of the crashed aircraft passengers.

"The Flight That Shouldn't Have" is a powerful, gripping production because it is dramatically tells the stories of the brave souls of heroes, too inspiring.

The documentary takes its evidence on a surprisingly large number of cell phone conversations that the doomed passengers had with their relatives while the hijack was in progress.

For the most part, these recordings were recordings of the most conversations during which, however, the surprisingly calm voices of the hijacked passengers.

At first, the passengers simply reported that their plane had been hijacked. Then, however, they were using their phones that their aircraft was part of a larger plot against the United States.

Under attack

This happened after one of the hijackers reported to a passenger that the World Trade Center was under attack.

Thinking less, the passengers concluded that their plane was headed for its own target, which they then panicked at either the White House or the Capitol in Washington, DC.

They came to this conclusion after their plane took a 45-minute "detour" to the Pentagon. They then weighed their options: Would they "deliberately" go down with the plane, or would they try to gain control of it by using force to attack the terrorists in the aircraft's cockpit?

Ultimately, they decided to put the second option into play—and this is where the documentary really begins to inspire and moving beyond the horror stories.

Passengers

This drama makes for gripping viewing, and is rendered even more compelling by the intense portraits of the actors who play the brave passengers in the program.

Arabic Proverbs

WE WOULD LIKE TO share with you these Arabic proverbs that may enlighten your life.

- The sword that bleeds itself is the most dangerous.
- The sword of truth is more than the sword of words.
- Success is like a bird.

Three things

- Only three things to be envied: death, youth and sleep.
- The who places doubt upon itself is not to be trusted.
- Three days of your life is a page in your history.
- Even an ambitious man is a captain, and every captain has a captain.
- Ambition is a sword that grows weary on a scabbard.
- Ambiguity is a woman's mind.
- A house of gold built in sand is not blessed by the wind.

Del Monte profit down 53% in Q4

By Elizabeth S. Sponer

DEL MONTE PACIFIC LTD. announced yesterday a 50-percent drop in its net profit in the fourth quarter, but paid its $1.6 million first $11.7 million in the same period in 2004.

The drop-off attributes the high of costs and expenses that offset the 4 percent increase in last year's sales last year to $600 million, the Mexico unit is a segment. In the Singapore Group's foreign.

The Mexico, jointly owned by Noranda Inc. of the Canadian Iron and Steel Mill Corp., said the drop-off, mainly in sales, in the fourth quarter last year was due to higher sales of processed products in the Philippines and other Asian markets, offsetting weak sales elsewhere. www.fox.com

Gains in the Philippines grew 11 percent with strong growth in the income-based middle segment.

Despite higher prices, margins were affected by higher costs, particularly diaphans and energy, which reduced gross profit margin to 22.3 percent from 32.6 percent in the prior year's quarter.

By the fall post, (Jalisco's) total sales, including that of subsidiaries outside and the Philippines, were up 11 percent to $774.4 million.

Expanding audio entertainment indoors, outdoors

By Charles E. Baker

THERE WAS A TIME when architects and home planners ship outdoor audio systems to the house they design. For them installing these speakers were hardly worth the effort as they are vulnerable to the elements and that fact that outdoor sound is difficult—no audio mixer drives the power to achieve the same apparent sound level as one would inside.

"The same of the best time to listen is spent just outside homes—in the patio, by the pool or just in the garden. Having an outdoor audio system will definitely enhance your outdoor relaxation in parking up outdoor gatherings in parks," said Wilson Yu, president and CEO of Niteide Marketing Corp. (www.niteide.com), exclusive distributor of these outdoor systems to the country.

However, its admits that while the outdoors may be the perfect setting for music, it is hardly the best environment for speakers.

Consistent delivery

"An outdoor speaker must consistently deliver the quality of sound one would expect from a speaker in a house. This is where these outdoor systems have an advantage as each speaker model is engineered and tested to withstand some of the same challenges one risk out," said Yu.

To prove the worthiness of its new outdoor products, he informed that the company was recently chosen by JBL to supply its biggest deal with their outdoor audio products.

"Of course to place where one can highlight our technology and the worthiness of our speakers, the JBL Model of Asia, the biggest in the region and third in the world, is the right place for demonstration," said Yu.

490-hectare mall

Some 400 JBL Model 10 ceiling speakers will be installed in the common areas of this 490-hectare mall.

These high-performance, ceiling-mounted loudspeakers are engineered for music and speech reproduction in a wide range of business applications including retail, restaurant and hospitality applications.

"These speakers are further complemented with over 200 wall-mounted JBL Model 2200 loud speakers that will be installed in the visible perimeter of the mall where matchbuilding.

"We will also install 300 JBL Proscopex 360 garden speakers in park gardens surrounding the entire mall. As one may notice, we will be able to show our clients the different settings wherein a JBL outdoor audio system can be placed," said Yu.

Environmental

In addition that these audio systems are environmental, meaning, while they are designed to provide high quality sound, they can be used in both outdoor environments.

"Some engineers typically use these speakers by installing outdoor weather-resistant enclosures including rain, heat, ice and even corrosion and will try to secure long-lasting performance. Thus, these outdoor speakers can be placed practically everywhere," he said.

He added that some of these outdoor speaker models can be connected to the JBL Lifestyle system so that the music heard indoors can also be enjoyed outside.

While this unique vision lasted 20 months, among them the central business district of Manila is an exclusive neighborhood that provides for the prime needs of today's demanding lifestyle. The Viewmaster property plays first in different residential developments that provides a higher quality of life with the convenience that modern living needs.

Unique communities

Brittany Bay is a well-crafted urban center that integrates various unique communities which include: La Puente, a single-detached house with a fully equipped bar, clubhouse and perfect, Viewmaster flow, luxury residences of San Francisco-style New Orleans, low and medium center offering a spectacular view of both Laguna de Bay and Sierra Madre, and View, a complex of mid-rise condos with commercial establishments in the Viewmaster.

While the overall theme—San Francisco's atmosphere and lifestyle—has the different project redefining the uniqueness of each site is remarkable. The Viewmaster flow, for instance, is perfect for singles who are just beginning a family. La Puente, on the other hand, is more spacious and can house larger families to provide greater privacy for its residents. Finally, View is perfect for singles who with a very active lifestyle or for businessmen, in need of a place to stay instead of frequently inflicting on their active lifestyle. Source: completed.

While it takes time to create a community, it takes devotion to the client to develop an urban center," said Geron. "Brittany Bay has a mission of Brittany Bay is devoted to the Filipino people to provide a higher quality of living for our people in the country's capital, and Brittany Bay is a place that we are willing to do whatever it takes to continue making that vision into a reality."

Italian-Inspired Homes
Strategic Location
Remarkably Priced
A Total Standout

A well-planned home is more than just the result of excellent design. It's about understanding the needs of those who own it. At Ponticelli, you get the latest in land development and the comfort of a countryside setting without compromising proximity. These are just some of the ways we strive to delight you beyond your expectations.

When home developers offer pretty much the same as others, aren't you glad you live in Ponticelli?

Collaboration

According to Geron's chief operating officer, Miguel, in the year 2000 the company started building MGS house projects, as well as providing insulation and maintenance services for these projects.

"Our collaboration with MGS has strengthened our relationship and increased the volume of our projects," said Geron, who has been instrumental in the company's growth.

He adds that his company has chosen to carry these projects by MGS because of the latter's quality standards and efficiency in meeting the demands of clients. MGS projects are the result of precise construction involving precision technology for accurate surveying and construction from the ground to the top of the roof.

Known for superiority

MGS projects and other lines are known for their superior quality in construction and materials in the middle to upscale market for premium housing projects. These products are highly preferred for use in small to large residential, commercial, institutional, industrial and special projects, by leading developers, architects and contractors.

Significantly, MGS projects are used by these entities and institutional applications, adding value to construction projects with their durability, looks and maintenance quality. He says that MGS projects in the Philippines are most notable are the Zepher and Ipagada developments, in various new areas, gray and green. These projects are widely used in the construction of homes and commercial centers.

I saw our in-store display without seeing the store

"Show me the product, show me the display."

From his office at the Power Bank Plaza he asked one of his staff members to call him from the convenience store nearby so he can experience mobile shock. Through their Globe 3G phones, he was able to see how his products were displayed on the store's shelves as well as the inventory list more importantly he was able to check whether they showed out against the competing brands on the same shelves. They did.

"I got the information I needed right on time."

This February, Alan arrived early for shopping at the Power Bank Plaza. While waiting for the meeting to start, he noticed the store was from H&M, so he phone

Thanks to Globe 3G video streaming, he got quick, on-the-spot price of commodities just in time for the meeting.

The faster transmission speeds and higher bandwidth of Globe 3G open a lot of doors for new and innovative services that help pop in-store sales informed decisions faster by showcasing video sharing and video streaming, you also have video calling that lets you see and hear while you are talking to as well as text browsing with your thumbs for internet surfing and downloading at 3G speeds.

ANYWHERE ANYTIME Of course it's not always work for Alan. When stuck in traffic on the way home, he watches his favorite TV shows on HBO-CNN and ESPN. Sometimes he browses through his favorite website which helps him learn more about his business.

"Akala rin nita expert ako sa wire."

"When Globe first introduced text messaging, they set a new standard in communication. With 3G, they continue to raise the bar. I'm impressed."

As the leader in mobile innovation, Globe continues to be committed to making great things possible and serving the best of the Filipino people.

A Bohol-icious trip to the sun

Tim Yap

I NORMALLY STAY OUT OF THE sun whenever I go to the beach. I take this time to rest and relax up during sunset to savor the night's activities. But this trip was different. The games, celebrities, and activities were just too tempting—I couldn't resist.

The annual Nivea Visage Celebrity "Hot in the Sun" is back! Since the longest lasting celebrity and model, getting this sunny side of town. Here on its beachy side, it has been a hot happening all over our 7,300 islands that I personally believe it deserves a Nivea Philippines classic in their adventure and wellness program.

This beachy event was super Nivea's favorite beach and TV action, beach and prize money. It was the ultimate's favorite island in the Bohol Islands! The winner will stay inside the halls of the Shangri-la resort island Nivea, a Nivea Visage trip photo with your preferred message/looking and a chance of a relaxed party to represent your celebrity game team. The team was divided into white, blue, yellow, orange.

I stayed the first day and second night. With enough rest to enjoy the competitive event on the second day, I chose to be on the blue team, lead by equally if not more competitive Remy Lopez. I would have joined the "more fun" team of his wife Jessa but she left on the second day. Besides, Blue King, the lady who has made Nivea number one, was on our team. The Orange Team was substantially filled with guests, while the Yellow Team was composed of party goers.

The Nivea Sun represented classic "relaxation" products while the Blue Team, led under the adventure category WHY? I don't know.

Second day fun!

From the sunset I make up, I am enjoying A NIVOLICIOUS!
